Yes, there is definitely too much violence on television. The amount of sexual and violent content affects both children and adults. As a high school counselor, I see far too many of our young people influenced by sex and violence. We do not need to see it on television, especially since we watch so much. I wish we would do something about it.   Thank you...